Maybe unnecessary to say but faster internet would be nice..

I was coming to this from a 'platform and sensor' side rather than a 'fluorescence' side but The school was excellent, the trainers were wonderful - willing to explain anything at any time and this information was invaluable. ----------------- My negative comments relate to circumstances outside of the organisers control. I only mention them in case it may be of some use in planning future events: - The limited delayed affected the whole training course. The average was 4kb/s. Locations with poor internet like this should be avoided. - I was very interested in the PARGE, ATCOR, APEX and SENTINEL 1a Tools tutorials in the draft programme. Due to medical reasons these were removed from the programme. Substitute lecturers would be as this compeoent was removed entirely. - The 'practical' events involved very little practical if there was expensive equipment involved. - I would rather the time spent preparing student presentations and results was spent in tutorials and data processing, which seemed to be under strict time constraints.

Great contribution of organizations to gather so many experts and equipment in one place
